

ANN HOUSTON KELLEY

- International Executive Coach
- Executive Women Development
- Senior Executive Consultant

Ann Houston Kelley enables international executives in global organizations to have act on the ‘things that matter’ with passion and compassion. Since 1995, Ann has built up a successful executive coaching firm based in the Netherlands and operating across Europe and the Middle East. She has coached and consulted with corporate leaders from 57 countries across 7 sectors including pharma, financial services, IT, fast moving consumer goods, energy, petrochemical, consultancy, United Nations & European agencies.

Ann specializes in:

- Promoting professional and personal sustainability for executive women
- Building high performance senior global teams
- Enabling senior executives to lead change effectively
- Consulting to organizations on how to use diversity and cross-cultural competence “to get the job done”
- Coaching executives on maximizing the benefits of expatriation for both the organization and the individuals involved

Ann’s international background (American-Dutch in Netherlands 21 years), her diverse professional background as an economist and family systems psychotherapist, and work experience which includes marketing analyst, IT manager, Human Resources specialist, and psychotherapist for international executives and their families, all help her to relate more effectively to her clients and their situational challenges.

Ann is a senior associate of the Insead Global Leadership Center and the Center for Creative Leadership. She is a member of the ISPSO, SIETAR and the APA. She is the author of the chapter “Coaching Executives across Cultures” in Coach and Couch The Psychology of Making Better Leaders (Kets-deVries, 2007). Ann has been an invited speaker at the EuRA Conference (Rome, 2008 and the Women on the Move Conferences in Brussels, Paris, London, 1996, 1998. 2000, 2002). She has a BA in Economics and Public Policy Studies from Duke University and a MA in Counseling Psychology from Lewis and Clark.