

AMY FOX, MA

- Master Corporate Trainer
- Executive Coach
- Leadership Development
- Organizational Strategist

Amy Elizabeth Fox is a seasoned trainer, executive coach, and organizational strategist with experience consulting for corporations and nonprofit organizations. With over fifteen years of experience, Amy's gift is in helping individuals and companies strengthen, develop, and retain dynamic leaders. Her consulting and training work focuses on issues of communication, team building, negotiation, and strategic planning. Over the past decade and a half she has spoken at numerous national industry gatherings and led workshops for corporate executives across the country.

In 2004 she co-founded Mobius Executive Leadership, a boutique firm specializing in embedding exceptional leadership and communication skills into organizations through corporate training and coaching in leadership development. Her work in this arena of leadership development builds on the work of the Harvard Negotiation Project, which, over the last 20 years, has pioneered the development and application to the corporate context of theories and tools for negotiating, managing conflict, and building effective working relationships.

Recent clients include: American Management Systems, Standard and Poors, Merrill Lynch, Capital One, Selective Insurance, Wachovia Inc., Royal Bank of Canada, Phillips-Conoco, Johnson and Johnson Pharmaceutical, Genentech Inc., Sanofi-Aventis, PPD, Citrix Systems, The New York Times Company, Target, Gap Inc., and Blue Cross Blue Shield.

Amy serves as the Program Director of the Rockwood Fund's Leadership Training Program for Public Interest Professionals, a national effort to bring leading technologies in organizational development to the public interest sector. Amy is certified as an executive coach in the area of Emotional Intelligence by Hay/McBer and Associates, and as a trainer in the System for Analyzing Verbal Interaction by SAVI® Communications. She has taught courses for Linkage Inc., the Women's Leadership Exchange, the Institute for Management Studies (USA), and the Canadian Centre for Management Development.

Prior to her current work, Amy was the Director of Training and Organizational Development for WellSpace Inc., a health care start-up. Previously, she served as the Associate Director of the National Religious Partnership for the Environment, an educational initiative headed by Vice President Al Gore and Carl Sagan. She was Special Assistant to the Dean of Education, City College and Education Director of an in-patient alcohol rehabilitation hospital.

Amy is a psychotherapist who is affiliated with Cambridge Health Associates. She also serves as a Literary Scout for David Black Agency in New York City. She received her B.A. from Wesleyan University and her master's in Counseling Psychology from Lesley College.